

FATHER PLEADS FOR GIRL OF 15 WHO PASSED FORGERIES

"She's Not Bad, but Led Astray by a Handsome Man,"
He Writes.

SAID SHE WAS TWENTY.

Parents' Letters May Change Plans of Prosecution Against Loia Glazer.

TRENTON, Oct. 18.—That Loia Glazer held in jail here, charged with attempting to pass forged checks signed with the name of Frank N. Hoffstadt, Pittsburgh millionaire, is only fifteen years old instead of twenty, as she asserted when arrested, was brought out to-day in a letter received by the Trenton authorities.

The letter was written by Herman Glazer of Springfield, O., father of the girl, who learned through the newspapers that she had been arrested after leaving a trail of bad checks through Bala, Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities.

Wherever the girl went she was accompanied by a flashily dressed man who, the police say, took no open part in the check transactions. He was with her in Trenton when she was arrested, but deserted her. The police believe he used her as a tool and fled to save himself the imminent danger threatened.

JUST GRADUATED FROM EIGHTH GRADE OF SCHOOL.

In his letter Mr. Glazer, after giving his daughter's correct age, said she had just been graduated from the eighth grade of school.

"Don't you do something for a broken hearted father and mother?" he wrote.
"She can do nothing to you or your law, but she is something near and dear to us. Tell me what to do so I can come and get her out and take her home with me."

"She went to Toledo with her cousin for a few days' vacation, and that is the last we have seen of her. Since then we have had a couple of letters saying she was married and that she would explain all when she returned."

"But we have not seen her and now we are in trouble and cannot help her."

"We are poor, but if you will tell us where we can find a little store we will come to Trenton and live there just to show you that our little girl is not a bad girl, but just led astray
by a handsome man."

GRAND JURY THOUGHT SHE WAS TWENTY.

As the girl is only fifteen the lines of the prosecution may be changed.
Her case has been presented to the Grand Jury, but the idea was that she was twenty. There is hardly a doubt that an indictment would have been found.

The girl says the checks bearing Mr. Hoffstadt's name, and other checks she passed were given her by a man who persuaded her that they were good. She believed him. The man who traveled with the girl represented himself as her husband. At the time of the arrest Mr. Hoffstadt refused to discount the case, but it was reported in Pittsburgh that he had been fined out of $10,000 last summer by the girl, who passed as an actress.

It Was a Money Boy.
Why are you so happy?" a friend asked John Honey, a builder of College point, yesterday.

"Because," he replied, "there is a little honey boy up at the house."

to work out patterns.

A new and distinctive feature of this department is the illustration necessary for the making of the gartractive design can be executed, and also serves as a guide in cutting one's

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Dear Fashion Editor:
I have ten yards of tan pongee. Will you kindly advise some way to make it? Am short and well developed, sixteen years old. Have dark hair, blue eyes, fair skin.

M. L.
A 3-inch front panel, being lapped by the side goes, could attend all the way down the front.
Buttons trimming the panel each side from the bust line to knees could be caught across with self color sash or ribbon, while the same effect across the long sleeves to the elbow. A belt of blue with an antique buckle in the back will add attractiveness.

Dear Fashion Editor:
Will you please give me suggestions for making over two silk shirt waists for wear with a blue tailored suit.
One is a plain blue satin, the other is of blue satin with a white stripe in it.
They are both made with tucks to simulate a yoke and have long sleeves.
Should like to have the sleeves three-quarter length. I have two pretty net gumps that could be used. F. M. M.

Use blue chiffon over the blue satin one, having it reach only to within 3 inches of the belt line, in bolero effect, finishing it with ball fringe. Finish the day himself sleeves in the same way, while blue sash or ribbon could finish the neck. Cut the sleeves three-quarter length and use the lace gumps with it.

Trim the straps one with deep lace cuffs and a deep collar falling off the shoulders from around neck in the front of which is a large bow.

Dear Fashion Editor:
I am a young girl, seventeen years of age, and quite stout, male complexion and light hair. Last year I had a black satin dress which made me look very old. The sleeves were puffed at the elbow, finished with lace plaiting.
The waist had black silk embroidery in straps over the shoulders to the belt. The skirt was draped up on the left side with a buckle. Can you please suggest how this dress can be remodelled?
O. R. E.

Black would not become you in any style. Make the sleeves real short and cut the neck low, finished with a collar of heavy cream lace drooping from the shoulders to the girdle in back. Have a cuff of lace open at the back with a flimsy plait-ing. Finish the sleeves and a crushed girdle of turquoise blue velvet would complete the frock.

Dear Fashion Editor:
I have 2 1/4 yards of salmon color crepe de China, one yard wide, already hemmed, with also a 3 inch fold. I have 2 1/4 yards of all-over lace. Am 5 feet 3 inches tall, slim and absolute brunette. Would lavender charmeuse become me for an evening dress, and how shall I trim it? Am eighteen years old. MISS LA ROE.

Make the short sleeve and lower blouse portion of the lace, thus forming a square yoke effect of the material. Gather the skirt in draped effect up the centre

DESCRIPTION.

This pink brocade satin room gown of simple dignity is made to open down the centre front with glass buttons to a ways below the belt line, where a dainty lace plaiting continues to the bottom.
The collar flaring away from the front is lined with white satin, also the sleeves are faced with same, being trimmed to the elbow with the buttons.
The dainty cap of lace with a cluster of rosebuds at the back drop long ends of black velvet.

Showing a width of the lace from the knees down. Have an amber colored, champagne, instead of lavender, made with a bunch of cream chiffon slashed at the sides and caught at the knees with tiny rosettes. Finish the low cut armholes and deep neck with a hem and the short sleeves with a plait-ing of lace.

$513,831 SHORTAGE FOUND IN ACCOUNTS OF HUDSON COUNTY

Investigator Charges 31 Freeholders were Slipshod in Their Business Methods.

James Cameron, who has been conducting an investigation into the financial affairs of Hudson County, N. J., for the past seventeen months made his report yesterday to Justice Francis J. Swayze in Jersey City.

The report charges the thirty-one Freeholders attended to the County's business in the most slipshod sort of way; that the Freeholders all considered themselves purchasing agents, favoring themselves or their constituents in the purchasing of supplies and that the County sinking fund shows a shortage of $513,831.10.

The investigator does not charge this fund was stolen, but says money was diverted to other sources when it should have been intact. He alleges the Freeholders failed to make provision for the payment of $897,272.08 outstanding bonds when they fall due.
It is charged that Sheriff Peter M.
Wedin and ex-Sheriff James J. Kelly, who received salaries of $10,000 a year, were allowed to collect fees in addition to their salaries, in violation of the law.

Cameron says where contracts were awarded favorites bidders the practice of the Freeholders was to give the contractor orders for goods not contracted for, with the result: the contractor charged what he pleased.

The Register's office, the Surrogate's office and the County Clerk's office are run at a heavy loss, the report shows.
The court account has been loaded up with expenses of other departments to cover overloaded payrolls, Cameron reported.

In 1909-1910 the appropriation for incidentals was $15,000. The expenditures charged to incidentals for that period were $178,854.23.

When Cameron first began his investigation a number of the Hudson County Freeholders were indicted.
County Collector Stephen M. Egan also was indicted and was convicted. He was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary, but pending an appeal now in the Court of Errors and Appeals, he is out on bond and still is on the job as County Collector.

At the November election nine new Freeholders will be elected to take the places of the present thirty-one, the number having been cut down after Cameron's exposures began.
